WHY?

joy

The word "joy" is written in a vibrant, multi-colored cursive font. Each letter is filled with a different color: the 'j' is purple, the first 'o' is blue, the 'y' is green, and the second 'o' is orange. The letters have a slightly distressed, hand-painted appearance. The background consists of soft, overlapping watercolor washes in various colors, including purple, blue, green, orange, and pink, creating a bright and cheerful atmosphere.

4. Use improvement science to test approaches to improving joy in work in your organization

3. Commit to a systems approach to making joy in work a shared responsibility at all levels of the organization

2. Identify unique impediments to joy in work in the local context

1. Ask staff, "What matters to you?"

Measurement

In the past week at work, how often have you enjoyed being at work?

Not at all   hardly at all   a few times   fairly often   frequently

Using your own definition of “burnout,” please circle one of the answers below:

- I enjoy my work. I have no symptoms of burnout
- I am under stress, and don't always have as much energy as I did, but I don't feel burned out
- I am definitely burning out and have one or more symptoms of burnout, such as physical and emotional exhaustion
- The symptoms of burnout that I am experiencing won't go away. I think about work frustrations a lot
- I feel completely burned out. I am at the point where I may need to seek help

How likely are you to recommend your team as a place to work?

Not at all likely

10
Extremely likely

A change in culture

Enjoyment at Work

Leads: Kulwinder Sanghera, Marisa Bouman
Coach: Francisco Frasilho Sponsor: Tracey Upex

“Enjoyment takes Work”

Aim

Improvement in staff satisfaction and well-being so that staff are better able to meet the needs of their service users

Why is this important to service users and carers?

This is important for service users and carers because the evidence suggests that staff are able to meet service users needs more effectively when they have increased enjoyment at work. [1]

Learning and what next?

A change in culture takes time and challenges the system. Over the course of the project there was increase in engagement from staff, in order to maintain and improve we will continue to implement changes suggested by staff – including externally facilitated reflective sessions, and mindfulness at work.

Breakout session

Renata Souza and Emily Cannon

Running an effective project team meeting

Plan

- Clarify purpose and objective of the meeting before you start
- Identify a chair, timekeeper, note taker (rotate roles in each meeting) and facilitator if facilitation is needed (usually your QI coach)
- Review agenda and adjust if needed

Running an effective project team meeting

Work through the agenda

- Review your data e.g. what has everyone's enjoyment at work been over the past few weeks? What has our completion rate been on the survey?
- Review your PDSA cycles e.g. how are the change ideas going that we've introduced? What have patients/members of the wider team said? Have there been any changes in our data? Can we make any changes to improve the ideas?
- Has anyone suggested any new ideas recently? What ideas could we introduce next?

Running an effective project team meeting

What's next?

- Review meeting notes
- How can we delegate tasks out between the project team?
- How will we share the outcomes of this project team meeting? At a staff/team/community meeting to keep the wider team up to date?
- Plan next steps and next agenda
- Evaluate meeting to make the most of the time in future project meetings

Next steps

- Set your bi-weekly project team meetings and let your QI Coach know when these are happening
- In your early meetings, your QI Coach will help you look at the results of your in-depth survey and outputs from the appreciative inquiry session, and help you generate change ideas
