The Royal College of Psychiatrists' Education and Training Centre is pleased to present a one-day training course to provide the annual further relevant training required for Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards Mental Health Assessors.

The Mental Capacity Act Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards (formerly known as the Bournewood safeguards) were introduced in April 2009 into the Mental Capacity Act through the Mental Health Act 2007. The safeguards provide legal protection for those vulnerable people who are deprived of their liberty otherwise than under the Mental Health Act 1983, to prevent arbitrary decisions to deprive a person of their liberty and to give rights to challenge deprivation of liberty authorisations. The safeguards apply to people who lack capacity to consent to care or treatment, and who are suffering from a disorder of the mind.

Course content includes:

- Current case law
- Assessment process in action
- Statutory criteria
- Completion of forms
- Information sharing
- Case studies

About the Trainer:

Kate Hill is a solicitor at RadcliffesLeBrasseur and is a medical law and ethics specialist with a background in clinical negligence. She advises trusts, private healthcare organisations and professional bodies on risk management, policy and procedure. Kate is also a member of the RadcliffesLeBrasseur's mental health team where she assists clients at Inquests and with untoward incident management.

Who should attend:

DoLS Mental Health Assessors who require annual further relevant training as required by the regulations. This course is for doctors who are already trained as DoLS Mental Health Assessors.

Becoming a Mental Health Assessor in relation to DoLS

To become a DoLS Mental Health Assessor, doctors must have completed the DoLS mental health assessor programme made available by the Royal College of Psychiatrists.

The Royal College of Psychiatrists' Education and Training Centre has worked collaboratively with the Department of Health to produce training materials for doctors as part of a DoLS Mental Health Assessor Training Programme. Regulations agreed by Parliament in 2008 have specified that Supervisory Bodies (in relation to DoLS) must be satisfied that, to be mental health assessors, doctors must have completed this DoLS mental health assessor programme made available by the Royal College of Psychiatrists. More information on our training can be found at www.rcpsych.ac.uk/cetc

Course Fee:

£195 per delegate. All learning materials, refreshments and buffet lunch are included.
