C. G. Jung in Search of the Soul and the Hidden Christ An Autumn Seminar with Dr Roger Woolger

Saturday 25th October 2008, 10am—4 pm
At Colet House, 151 Talgarth Road, London W14 9DA

Carl Gustav Jung's genius as a psychologist is widely recognized. He influenced psychiatry, broadened our understanding of religious experience and built bridges between science and spirituality, east and west with concepts such as the collective unconscious, synchronicity and more. Yet the personal sources of Jung's major works- especially the still unpublished Red Book in which he painted his visionary encounters and recorded dialogues with archetypal forces - remain poorly understood.

In this richly illustrated slide seminar Dr. Woolger will show and comment on many rarely seen pictures from the Red Book, notably Jung's quasi-gnostic mandalas relating to his channelled writings. He traces Jung's extraordinary inner life, from his secret childhood dreams and his opening to "personality number two," to his epochal visionary confrontation with titanic inner forces. He also shows how such visions were the seeds of Jung's mature understanding of the Self and the Christ of the alchemists - the Philosophers Stone at the heart of the living cosmos.

Dr Roger Woolger is a pioneer in Deep Memory Process (regression therapy) and a life-long student of world spiritual traditions. A graduate of the C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich, he holds degrees from Oxford and London Universities in psychology, philosophy and comparative religion, and is an acclaimed speaker at many international conferences.
