

Spirituality & Healthcare

The place of faith communities in mental health recovery, the use of theatre in healing and cultural identity

Who should attend?

All health professionals, chaplains, community faith leaders, equality leads, community development workers, operations managers & service user representatives.

There has been growing interest in the place of spirituality and religion within healthcare. Faith communities play a central role in mental health recovery but there is need for greater partnership between the voluntary sector and mainstream services. There are examples of innovative practice such as use of theatre. This conference brings together a range of experts to provide an overview of the interface between religion and health.

This is a free one day conference at a state of the art international venue providing participants with a chance to network.

The programme will include interactive presentations, discussions, workshops and a dramatic enactment.
