Obituaries (with advice on how to read them)

‘De mortuis nil nisi bonum’

In this online archive I have listed the names of all those psychiatrists and Honorary Members and Fellows of the Association and College who feature in the new Dictionary of National Biography (OUP) 2004 with the volume and page number. I have also listed all the obituaries published in the Association’s journals between 1853 (the first volume) and 2005. There was a curious hiatus between 1971 and 1982 when no obituaries were published. Sir Aubrey Lewis who was the outstanding psychiatrist of his generation died in 1975 but had no official obituary in the College Journal. I have added some names of those omitted and given an alternative obituary for them.

The obituaries in the College’s Journal were published in three separate ways at different times, first in the Journal itself (1853-1935), then in supplements to the Journal 1936-1971. The Supplements changed their name to News and Notes in February 1972. In 1977 this became the Bulletin of the Royal College of Psychiatrists. (Before the Supplements were issued there was a section at the end of the Journal, which contained the same information. This was known as Notes and News.) The Bulletin finally became the Psychiatric Bulletin: The Journal of Psychiatric Practice in 1989.

The supplements, News and Notes and the Bulletin were bound with the Journal until 1989. From 1990 onwards the Bulletins were bound separately. Because of this the volume number could refer either to the Journal or the Bulletin. It was necessary to include a further column to cover the first thirteen years of the Bulletin which were bound with the Journal. The Journal number is given in the column headed J.Vol. or Suppl. Similarly an obituary published in one of the supplements required the name of the month when it was published, as well as the year and Journal number. These are also given in the same column (J.Vol. or Suppl.)

In compiling this list of obituaries I was very much helped by Dr Ezra who did most of the hard mechanical work. He told me that it was much like writing the telephone directory and he hoped it would be as useful. He asked me if it would help if he gave some advice about reading obituaries which I have included at the end after ‘Z’.

HOW TO READ OBITUARIES

With the passage of 150 years changes can be seen in the style in which obituaries are written.

There is the same desire to write kindly lies about the deceased but this may be expressed in different ways. I have noted some phrases which draw attention to those redeeming vices, which make us more human, and have listed some of these examples of tactful euphemisms.

‘At meetings he always gave a very thorough review of the subject under discussion’ = he was prolix and tedious.

‘Not an innovator, he preferred to abide with the well tried measures and arrangements upon which his mature experience had taught him to rely’ = he was a stick-in-the-mud.

‘A man who required knowing’ = he was cold, austere and self-satisfied.

‘He was a fighter and could bring forward most biting sarcasm and cynical comments, but they were always tinged with a humour which took the sting out of them’ = he was offensive but got away with it.

‘A traditionalist who was cautious about adopting new procedures’ = he was out of date.

‘He was extremely well read and could talk with knowledge and in his own delightfully original way on any subject’ = but usually at too great length.

‘Renowned for his old fashioned courtesy’ = he was pompous.

‘He always ensured he thoroughly covered all points’ = he was long winded

‘Fond of the convivial pleasures of life’ = he drank too much.

‘The ethos of classical Greece’ = homosexuality.

‘A discerning aesthete and a confirmed bachelor = presumably gay or homosexual.

‘An enthusiastic participator in amateur theatricals’ = he was possibly something of a cross dresser

‘An idiopathic approach to treatment’ = it is doubtful if he knew what he was doing

‘He was a clever man but one with a restless spirit’ = unreliable.

‘Fond of the fair sex’ = he was a libertine (serial fornicator).

‘He was much loved by the nurses’ = probably another serial fornicator

‘The salt of the earth’ = it was difficult to think of something to say.

‘Never one to be unduly fussy about the finer points of personal hygiene’ = seldom washed.

‘Not constrained by the nicer points of social etiquette’ = I don’t know what this means but I fear the worst.

‘Solid’ = he was dull and stodgy.

‘Never one to suffer fools gladly’ = he was a boor and a bully.

‘He was a true Irishman, genial, quick tempered, impulsive, generous to a fault, the soul of hospitality, extremely witty, excellent at repartee’ = this must have been written by an Englishman who had attended an Annual General Meeting in Dublin.

Dr Ezra (‘The Scribe’)
