

Healing Beyond the Body: Weaving Spirituality into Psycho-oncology

Soumitra Shankar Datta MD, FRCPsych, Tata Medical Center, Kolkata and University College London

Dean's Grand Rounds – Royal College of Psychiatrists, UK
Date: 18th Sept 2025

What we will touch upon

Why ?

How?

Patient

Scared of treatment

Lacking trust

Afraid to die

Medical practitioner

Believes in action

Takes ownership of cure

Denies death as an acceptable outcome

Milieu

Excellent facilities

Qualified staff

More resources
– immortal life

Bio-medical paradigm

Existing models

- Biomedical Model: Govt Medical Colleges in India, NHS
- Socialist Medical models: Liver transplant unit in King's College Hospital
- Hybrid models: CMC Vellore
- Community-based models: Missionaries of Charity, Can-Support
- Religious healing

Spiritual Care for
in-patient
palliative care unit
of Tata Medical Center, Kolkata

Daughters of the Cross

We have three religious sisters who are qualified nurses

Care is spiritual or secular

Spiritual dimension of psychiatric consultations

Helping the patient to understand and adjust to the situation

Help the patient communicate his wishes

Spiritual dimension of psychiatric consultations

Supporting family members Addressing anticipatory grief

Psychiatric Emergencies in Oncology

Patients

Acute stress reaction

Anxiety

Delirium

Anticipatory grief

Severe depression

Family members

Burnout

Depression

The wounded healer

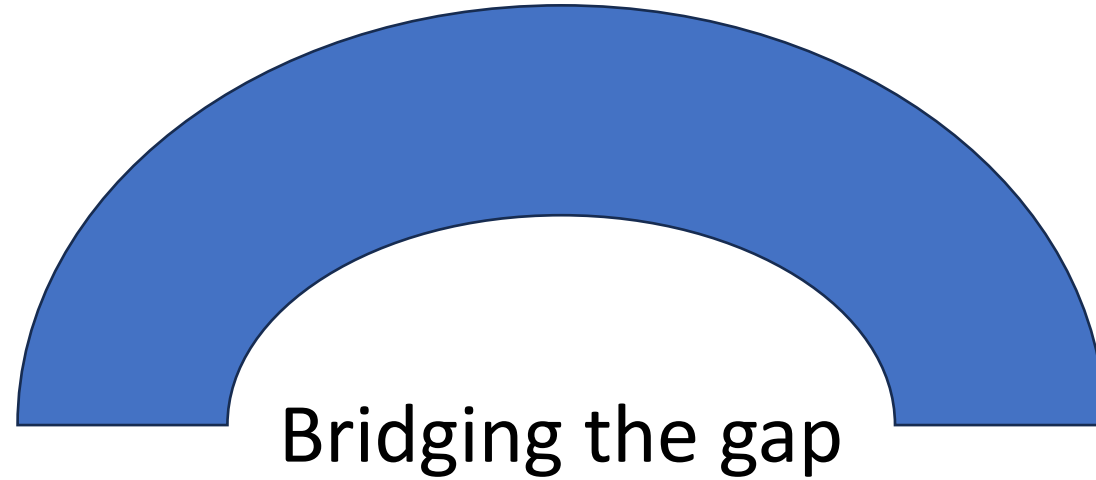

Suffering and pain

Wounds that may be physical and psychological

Anticipating death

Accepting death

Doctors are praised for the magic touch.

Priests were to have a healing power.

Modern intellectual peril

Many people are convinced that 'some thing is terribly wrong' with the present world

'Co-operation with the existing models is some kind of betrayal'

Spiritual care

Can go hand in hand

Giving time and space

Praying together
along with family members

Supporting
staff

Modern spiritual experiences

Education and wisdom

Dance

Love

'Return of the prodigal son'
Rembrandt

Q&A

Future
Courses:

You are welcome to VISIT our webpage for publications and future course updates

Dr Soumitra S Datta, MD FRCPsych

www.artofmedicine.in healthtalks20@gmail.com

AOM ART OF MEDICINE

COMMUNICATION | RESEARCH | WELLBEING

