SUPPORTING PEOPLE WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES...

Everyone in health and social services will support people who have learning disabilities. Two new websites have been developed to provide access to quality assured learning disabilities information.

NHS Education for Scotland has developed a website to provide a ‘one stop shop’ for finding and sharing knowledge - including evidence, learning resources, legislation, standards and guidelines, publications on topics such as nutrition, profound and multiple learning disabilities, autism spectrum and much more.

Get involved:

- Come along to a face to face training session - Book your place here https://www.research.net/s/LDF2F
- Get training from your desk - All you need is access to a PC, the Internet and a telephone line. Book your place here https://www.research.net/s/LDWEB
- Request promotional materials to give your colleagues - Contact knowledge@nes.scot.nhs.uk.
- Give us your feedback - This site is still in development, so let us know what you think by emailing knowledge@nes.scot.nhs.uk.

Visit: www.knowledge.scot.nhs.uk/learningdisabilities

The new website is fully integrated with The Knowledge Network and links can also be found on the Social Services Knowledge Scotland website – www.ssk.org.uk/topics-and-resources.
Developed by the Scottish Consortium for Learning Disability in partnership with NHS Education for Scotland, the Better Info Better Lives website (www.betterinfo.org.uk) contains accessible social care information for people with learning disabilities, their families and people who work with them. The website has lots of information on services and support and all the information is easy to understand. Topics on the website include employment, housing and transitions.

The design of the website is clear and accessible so that it is easy for people to find the information that they need. The information is available in a variety of accessible formats including easy read, plain English, audio and video.

Want to know more?
Get in touch with Cath McKay or Jo Thompson:
0141 418 5420 administrator@scld.co.uk

Visit: www.betterinfo.org.uk
This new website can also be accessed through The Knowledge Network – http://www.knowledge.scot.nhs.uk/home/portals-and-topics.aspx and the Social Services Knowledge Scotland website – http://www.ssk.s.org.uk/topics-and-resources.aspx

To find out more about accessible information visit www.scll.org.uk/information.